

Rosa Parks: Hero or Traitor?

School Children around America are being hit by the latest wave of the “guilt trip”. No, the “guilt trip” isn’t the latest rock-n-roll sensation. It is a mindset that is being laid heavily upon the sensitive hearts of our young people.

After the death of Rosa, public bus lines around the country placed giant posters of Rosa – on to the front seat of each bus. What’s more is the placing of these posters on public school buses from the west coast to the east coast. In this symbolic gesture —the seat upon which was set the poster – would remain open. No one would be allowed to sit in Rosa’s spot.

Oh, how sweet this seems to be. A poor working class woman, a Christian no doubt, standing up for her feminine right to take a seat while the rich man stands.

But, as Paul Harvey so often says, “There is more to this story.”

Just as King is held up as a great hero for all races, and his communist record kept quiet by the media, so to has Rosa's little secret been kept hush hush. Good ole' Rosa attended the Highlander Folk School with King which was cited as a Communist training school by the state of Tennessee. The school was financed by the Julius Rosenwald Fund. Rosa attended the school with King, Abner Berry - member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party and writer of the Communist Daily Worker, Aubrey Williams, Communist Party organizer and president of the Southern Conference Educational Fund - a Communist front, and Miles Horton - head of the school.

Even the famous photo of her sitting on the bus, with a disillusioned white man sitting behind her, was staged. The man on the bus, Nicholas C. Chriss, was not some irritated Alabama segregationist preserved for history, but a reporter working at the time for United Press International out of Atlanta. Still, if little known, the history of the picture is explored in one source, the biography of Rosa Parks by Douglas Brinkley, first published in 2000 as part of the Penguin Lives series of biographies.

Mr. Brinkley said Mrs. Parks, in interviews with him, explained how she left her home at the Cleveland Courts housing project specifically for a picture of her on a bus and that the idea was for her to be seated in the front of the bus with a white man behind. Similar photo opportunities were arranged for the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. and others during the day, he said. “It was completely a 100 percent staged event,” Mr. Brinkley said. “There was nothing random about it.”

Rosa Parks isn’t a hero to white children and shouldn’t be used in an attempt to make them ashamed of their race. They have done nothing wrong. However, Rosa Parks isn’t a hero to non-white children either. The Communist cause – which exists today under new names – has never been a friend to blacks. They are only pawns in Jewish games. Today, black neighborhoods are unsafe and even Rosa Parks would most likely fear for her life due to the violence perpetrated upon other blacks by dominant black males. When white men and women retained a certain amount of authority – the neighborhoods and schools of America were safe and the police officers were respected for keeping law and order – instead of being called “racist pigs” for trying to help the black community with the many issues of violence! Was it really Rosa’s and MLK’s dream to have black children in fear from other blacks? Its evident they didn’t think this far ahead. They helped no one – but they did usher in a nightmare for children of all races. The arrest of Rosa was a Communist publicity stunt. She deserves no respect – especially from white children who now suffer the rage of angry Negroes who don’t understand the cause of unsafe neighborhoods or whom is to blame. But I ask you -isn’t the Martin Luther King Avenue in any city – most likely the most violent street of the city? Black people left to themselves – wreaking chaos and havoc on their own people. And our white kids get the blame! Social instability – the Jewish led communists and global forces have had their way. I hope you’re very proud Rosa – because the children of America are suffering the consequences of your Communist views!
